Big Bird Comes to Amargosa Valley!

Anne Dee

No doubt you are all familiar with Barney, the big purple dinosaur. Probably as many have also heard of Big Bird. Surely these are just characters on childrens' shows. Someone in a costume. Think again! Big Bird, at least, exists, and here is the proof. He showed up in Amargosa Valley recently. In my very own backyard in fact. I'm sure the skeptics will say this is a familiar creature. An ostrich or emu or rhea or something.

True, it might look like one of those exotic creatures. But this is the Mojave Desert, and everyone knows none of the aforementioned birds lives in the Mojave. Africa or Australia or some place strange and far away. Not in the Mojave. So, it must be Big Bird. Here is the proof. If Bigfoot or Elvis should wander into my yard, I'll be sure to get pictures and share those with you too. Stay tuned.
